SAFARI connoisseur

No Kenya safari would be complete without encountering the vast topography of Masai Mara. More than the quintessential landscape of east Africa, this 583 square-mile reserve boasts lions draped along the limbs of acacias, elephants leading their young in front of cloudless backdrops, hipopotamuses basking alongside crocodiles in the Tana River, and millions of wildebeests, zebras, topis, and gazelles migrating to and from the Serengeti.

Up... Up... and Away

Every morning during the dry season—just an hour before the dawn and long before sunrise—above the Mara, hot air balloons take flight. On top of one of the world's plains, the balloons rise to 10,000 feet and drift with the wind, offering a perfect vantage point with champagne, a gourmet breakfast, and a sweeping view of the Kenya's savanna and Serengeti plains.

Relax and Replenish

Safari, like the animals they stalk, is a slow and steady. Taking some time to recharge between demanding activities is a necessary skill. Whether you're in the middle of a long drive or simply sitting on the porch, the pool at Lake Nakuru is just the ticket.
